Hanoi Admits Serious Points Discussed At Coffee Breaks

PARIS (AP) — A North Vietnamese spokesman agreed Monday that representatives of the United States and North Vietnam sometimes discuss "serious matters" at private coffee breaks in the formal sessions of the Paris peace talks.

His comment, though carefully hedged, constituted a rare show of accord with a U.S. account of the private, informal discussions which have come to be an important part of the weekly meetings here.

U.S. officials hope that through these informal talks something may be accomplished to get the deadlocked talks moving.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman said in a television interview released Saturday that "serious matters" were touched on during the breaks. The North Vietnamese spokesman, Nguyen Thanh Le, was asked about this at a news conference Monday.

He said the private talks—between Harriman and North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy—are usually concerned with "the weather and the health of one or another of the participants" but "sometimes the problems already mentioned in the formal statements of the chiefs of delegation have been taken up again."

"For example," he said, "in the 11th session of July 3 during the break Harriman reiterated his thanks to the government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam on the freeing of the three American pilots announced by Hanoi."

Harriman had already expressed his thanks during the plenary session.

"If you consider that such a conversation involves serious questions these are in fact serious questions. But the talks have made no progress because of the attitude of the United States," Le said.

WCDA Names Officers, Makes Plans for Future

The Warren County Development Association, which is an affiliate of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce met last night in the conference room of the Sylvania Electric Products Research and Engineering Building to elect new officers and directors, and hear reports of current activities.

Re-elected as president and vice-president respectively were Charles A. Williams, Sylvania Electric, and Joseph McAmbly, Penelac. Elected treasurer was Joseph Brown, Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company. Serving as executive director will be Barry R. Epstein, executive vice-president of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce.

Elected to the board of directors were Williams, McAmbly, Brown, Milton A. Peterson, Pennsylvania Gas Company; Henry McConnell, Torpedo Wire and Strip; Roy E. Boettcher, Thomas Coupling; Gary Shepherd, National Forge. Also Karl B. Pierson, Betts Machine Co.; James C. Holding, Bell Telephone Co.; Philip Lively, Struthers Wells; John O. Hanna, Jr., Northwest Savings; Howard C. Ford, Sylvania Electric; and Neil K. Culbertson, General Concrete.

Also, Tom C. Atwell, Chemical Products Co.; Lester H.

Noll, Larimer & Norton; Harold A. Johnson, Pennsylvania Furnace & Iron; Robert L. Daye, United Refining; and Robert Lundberg, Warren National Bank.

The Board appointed James Keller, Columbia Gas Co.; Richard Marchione, Warren Water Co. and Bill Rusin, county planner, as additional members of the board, to fill three of six appointive positions.

Purposes of the group under a reorganization with the Chamber will be to work closely with existing industries for expansion, provide information on available state and national financial assistance programs, develop county-wide industrial site surveys, study possibilities of establishing an industrial park, be prepared to attract new industries to Warren County, as circumstances warrant, and promote the economic growth of the county.

Appointed to serve on the budget committee by President Williams were Joe McAmbly, chairman, Roy Boettcher, Joe Brown, and Henry McConnell. It was reported that an inquiry had been received from a local firm requesting assistance in securing a PIDA loan for expansion and much time had been spent by the staff on preliminary negotiations.

Government Begins Collecting 10% Income Tax Surcharge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government began collecting the 10 per cent income tax surcharge Monday amid speculation the levy might be extended beyond its scheduled expiration date next June 30.

But Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler told a news conference any decision to extend the tax should be held off for at least six months when next year's budget can be assessed in a better light.

At least one administration official, Undersecretary of Commerce Howard J. Samuels, has suggested extending the tax to help meet the nation's social needs. The administration itself has taken no official view.

Any extension would be up to the next president and new Congress to be elected in November.

Collection of the surcharge will be reflected in higher deductions from paychecks received this week and thereafter for federal income taxes.

Proposed Housing Development Expected Soon

Warren County Chamber of Commerce reported Monday that a proposed housing development for the Warren Area will be released shortly.

The chamber office said this proposal conforms to all the necessary zoning ordinances and no variances will be needed. The proposal will fill a deficiency in the middle income housing inventory in the Warren area.

Further details are expected from the chamber officer later this week. A primary goal of the chamber program this year is to work toward providing additional housing in the Warren area, a spokesman said.

President Williams appointed Howard Ford, Joe McAmbly, and Bob Lundberg to continue investigating the possibilities with the principals involved. The availability of a 20,000 sq. ft. building in Warren County for industrial usage was made known and any interested persons may obtain further information by calling the office, 723-3050.

It was reported that the Penn Tap Sci-Tech bookmobile would be in Warren July 15 - July 26, stocked with a variety of materials useful to business and industry. Arrangements have been made to have any interested firms familiarize themselves with the services offered on July 17, at 8 p.m. in the Jefferson Room of the public library. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Georgia Coyle at the Public Library.

The source emphasized however, that the pullback did not mean the enemy command was cancelling its attack plans. The source said latest developments indicate that no attack is likely until late July or early August.

Meanwhile, U.S. and Vietnamese infantrymen backed by artillery and U.S. warplanes reported killing 104 enemy troops in Vinh Binh Province 59 miles southwest of Saigon. U.S. casualties were not reported while government troops reported losing two wounded.

The new U.S. assessment contradicted South Vietnamese reports of an enemy buildup along the Cambodian border west of Saigon, from where the enemy is expected to launch its main thrust against the capital.

South Vietnamese sources said two North Vietnamese regiments evaded B52 bombers and

LBJ Hopes to Leave Legacy of Better Relations with Reds

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson emphasized Monday his desire to leave a legacy of better relations with the Soviet Union when his term of office ends.

Johnson said he believed that the United States could "soon" advance toward détente with the Soviet Union and toward an agreement to limit missile forces.

The President made his remarks in transmitting to the Senate for ratification a treaty on the rescue and recovery of Astronauts who may crash-land on foreign soil.

Undersecretary of State Nicholas Deb, Katzenbach said, after a meeting with the President, that the Astronaut treaty "serves as a hopeful prelude" to forthcoming negotiations with Russia on the reduction and limitation of both defensive and offensive nuclear missiles.

Johnson took the same position in a written message to the Senate accompanying the Astronaut treaty. He said the Astronaut recovery treaty was "an important step" in a series of agreements that have lessened East-West tensions.

"I hope and believe we can soon advance further on this road when we sit down to talk with the Russians about the limitation and reduction of offensive and defensive strategic weapons," Johnson said.

Discussions are now underway to set the time for negotiations between the two nations on such disarmament and limitation of new armaments questions. The United States, which originally was interested primarily in an agreement to limit the deployment of expensive antiballistic missiles, has agreed to Soviet proposals to also discuss limitation of offensive missiles.

Johnson is known to desire broad and dramatic agreements with the Soviet Union before his term of office ends early next year.

Monday the White House announced that a renewal of the ten-year-old cultural exchange agreement with the Soviet Union had been signed in Moscow and followed that with the message on the Astronaut treaty. The President also recently sent to the Senate a treaty aimed at limiting the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

When asked by a newsmen why there was such a "flurry" of activity involving United States-Soviet cooperation, Katzenbach said he supposed "it was just the fact that these areas of common interest have been a major objective of President Johnson."

The new agreement, reflecting a campaign here against a penetration of "bourgeois" ideology, curtails exchanges in culture and education, scientific and technical exchanges, however, have been broadened to some extent.

A program of exchanges in peaceful uses of atomic energy was revived in parallel negotiations after a lapse of more than two years.

The new agreement, for 1968-69, was signed by U.S. Ambassador I. Lewis E. Thompson and Nikolai M. Lukov, head of the foreign ministry's department of cultural relations with foreign countries.

Although the former exchange agreement expired at the end of last year, the Soviet Union showed no interest in negotiating a new one until April.

In large part, the delay was believed to have stemmed from Soviet vexation over the Vietnam war. Another factor in the delay was thought to have been the abolishing last winter of the state committee on cultural relations with foreign countries, which had conducted exchange negotiations for the last ten years.

The committee's responsibility

"This is something he has pushed the State Department and others very hard on," said Katzenbach. "It is an area in which he has made significant progress."

Some observers believe Johnson would very much like to have a summit meeting with Soviet leaders before he leaves office—to leave a legacy of good East-West relations. The Vietnam war has so far thwarted this desire.

U.S. - USSR Sign New Cultural Exchange Pact

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
MOSCOW—The Soviet Union and the United States signed Monday a new cultural exchange agreement after six weeks of arduous negotiations marked by Moscow's growing sensitivity to western ideological influences.

The new agreement, reflecting a campaign here against a penetration of "bourgeois" ideology, curtails exchanges in culture and education, scientific and technical exchanges, however, have been broadened to some extent.

A program of exchanges in peaceful uses of atomic energy was revived in parallel negotiations after a lapse of more than two years.

The new agreement, for 1968-69, was signed by U.S. Ambassador I. Lewis E. Thompson and Nikolai M. Lukov, head of the foreign ministry's department of cultural relations with foreign countries.

Although the former exchange agreement expired at the end of last year, the Soviet Union showed no interest in negotiating a new one until April.

In large part, the delay was believed to have stemmed from Soviet vexation over the Vietnam war. Another factor in the delay was thought to have been the abolishing last winter of the state committee on cultural relations with foreign countries, which had conducted exchange negotiations for the last ten years.

The committee's responsibility

ties were transferred to the foreign ministry, which had to organize an appropriate department.

Monday's signing ceremony was held as an Ilyushin-62 jet airliner was flying westward in the inaugural flight of a Moscow-New York route. Two Pan American Boeing 707's will fly here today.

Other signs of improved U.S.-Soviet cooperation include the recent signing of a consular convention and agreement to discuss a limitation on missile systems.

However, the effects of the ideological vigilance ordered by the Communist party last April are apparent in the new cultural exchange agreement. The annual exchanges of university students have been cut from 40 from each country to 30.

Exchanges of professors for research purposes have been reduced from 15 each to 10. Instead of the former exchange of five major performing arts groups, the new agreement provides for the exchange of three by each side.

Exhibitions have been reduced from two to one during the term of the agreement.

The U.S. would have preferred an expansion of these exchanges rather than a reduction. However, the quotas for students and professors were never fulfilled in previous years, so the new limits are at the levels of actual exchanges.

V.C. Pull Back Some Units, Lessen Threat to Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — A senior U.S. military source said Tuesday regimental and larger size enemy units have pulled back from Saigon toward the west, lessening for the moment the Communist threat to the capital.

The main punch from a third enemy offensive against Saigon was expected out of the west, where the Viet Cong Ninth Division and other large units had taken up positions.

The source emphasized however, that the pullback did not mean the enemy command was cancelling its attack plans. The source said latest developments indicate that no attack is likely until late July or early August.

Meanwhile, U.S. and Vietnamese infantrymen backed by artillery and U.S. warplanes reported killing 104 enemy troops in Vinh Binh Province 59 miles southwest of Saigon. U.S. casualties were not reported while government troops reported losing two wounded.

The new U.S. assessment contradicted South Vietnamese reports of an enemy buildup along the Cambodian border west of Saigon, from where the enemy is expected to launch its main thrust against the capital.

South Vietnamese sources said two North Vietnamese regiments evaded B52 bombers and reached the Cambodian border after a 250-mile march from the central highlands. There were also reports that the Viet Cong would increase terrorist activities in the capital and security forces were placed on 100 per cent alert.

U.S. and South Vietnamese intelligence assessments frequently differ. American officials claim the South Vietnamese often give a high credibility rating to what U.S. intelligence considers low-level sources.

The security alert in Saigon was 100 per cent Monday as Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford got briefings on the military and political situation in Vietnam. He arrived Sunday for his first visit to the country since succeeding Robert S. McNamara and was described as displaying a keen interest in the progress of the South Vietnamese government and its armed forces.

Clifford met with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and the U.S. military commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams. He was scheduled to spend two days in Saigon and two days in the provinces before reporting to President Johnson at a Honolulu meeting with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu next weekend.

Great Lakes Basin Compact Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed and sent to the White House Monday a bill approving a Great Lakes Basin Compact.

It grants the consent of Congress, with certain limitations, to a compact entered into by the eight states bordering on the Great Lakes—Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

The compact creates the Great Lakes Commission as an agency of the compacting states. It is composed of three to five commissioners from each state. It empowers the commission to make recommendations on the development, use and conservation of the water resources of the Great Lakes Basin.

Public Invited To Hear Speech on Communism

Alan Stang, author, lecturer and columnist, will speak on "Let's Stop Helping Communism" at 8 p.m. Monday, July 22nd at the Warren County Court House.

The public is invited to attend the speech, which is being sponsored by the Warren Area TRAIN Committee. TRAIN (To Restore American Independence Now) is a local committee formed by local citizens who are convinced that we must reassert traditional American principles in America's foreign policy if freedom is to survive. TRAIN's immediate concern is Vietnam and its immediate goals are:

1. To support our fighting men and to help them achieve victory over the forces of Communism.
2. To demand that our government stop all aid and trade with the Communist enemies who are helping to kill our men in Vietnam.
3. To offer every citizen of this area an opportunity to learn more about these vital issues and the means to do something about them.

Stang's speech will key on the subject of Western help to the Communist nations leading right up to the present. The final thrust of Mr. Stang's talk, however, discusses his views on the war in Vietnam. Says Stang, "American technology, equipment, supplies and credit keep the Communist war alive in Vietnam—and it's high time this aid to the enemy was stopped."

He concludes, "If we stopped helping the Communists, the war in Vietnam would end in a few months, and Communism would begin to disappear from the face of the Earth."

Surplus Food

Surplus food will be distributed to all Warren area recipients Wednesday from the depot at Fourth avenue and Beech street. Hours are 9 a.m. until noon and 1-4 p.m. Friday's distribution is scheduled for the Russell area from the fire hall. Hours are noon until 3 p.m. Please bring your own containers.

Scott Says No Roughshod Tactics at GOP Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., says there will not be a repeat this year of the 1964 Republican National Convention when delegates of conservative persuasion "simply ran roughshod" over moderate and liberal delegates.

"There's been some evidence of a convention among the middle-aged Tories in the party," Scott said in an interview. "They've become more mature."

What's more, he said, the number of moderate and liberal delegates will be at least equal to the number of conservatives.

At the 1964 convention Barry Goldwater, with the backing of the conservative-controlled convention, won the Republican presidential nomination on the first ballot.

Scott, who is backing New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for the 1968 nomination, is chairman of a subcommittee that will draft GOP platform planks on human needs. He said he expects some disagreement within the subcommittee on crime control.

"The whole law and order thing," he said, could be one of the key convention issues. However, Scott said, "I think we're going to get a pretty good platform this year. The common thread running through all this is a determination this year to stay united."

Scott said he would fight for a platform plank favoring fire arms registration and licensing if no firearms control law is passed by Congress before the convention meets in Miami Beach.

He said the platform submitted to delegates may recommend further cuts in federal appropriations for science and technology.

Alleged Attacker Gets Two Years For Assault

BROOKVILLE — Ronald Lee VanPelt, alleged attacker of a Punxsutawney girl, will serve a minimum of two years in the Allegheny County Workhouse in Pittsburgh.

VanPelt pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with attempt to kill, before Jefferson County Judge Robert Morris. Judge Morris would not accept the charge due to lack of enough evidence to warrant the charge.

District Attorney William Henry then introduced a charge of assault and the DuBois man entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to one to two years on the assault charge.

He also pleaded guilty to charges of prison breach, larceny of county property, and assault on a prison guard. He was sentenced to one to two years for these crimes. The sentence for prison breach will not begin until the sentence for assault has been completed.

VanPelt was convicted of assault for the June 14 attack of Linda Pete. According to Miss Pete, VanPelt jumped into her car and threatened her with some sort of blade.

Larry Decker, a Punxsutawney man, was also sentenced for assault, prison breach and larceny. He escaped from the Jefferson County Jail with VanPelt. Decker will serve a six-month sentence in county jail.

Two Men Charged In Restaurant Burglary

Two men were arraigned on burglary and larceny charges late Monday afternoon, stemming from the June 25 break-in at the Red Barn Restaurant 2033 Pennsylvania ave. e.

Arraigned before Peace

Justice Martha G. Lawson before being remanded to Warren County Jail, were: Elton D. Grubbs, 24, of 60 Railroad st., Clarendon; and Timothy D. Imman, 20, of 258 McGowan st., Akron, Ohio, Police Chief Michael Evan reported.

Investigating officers were Warren Borough Police Sgs. Edward Peterson and Roger L. Thelin.

On the morning of June 25

Carl Zabel, Red Barn Restaurant manager, reported to police that the establishment had been burglarized overnight. An investigation disclosed that a $1,000 cash register was severely damaged; $25 was taken from that and another cash register; $80 was taken from a cash box; and other miscellaneous damage.

Chief Evan said entrance to the building was gained through a rear door by punching a hole through a wall and removing a stair tread. Following the burglary, the chief said, the pair left town for Akron, Ohio.

They returned July 4 and were subsequently arrested at the intersection of Hickory st. and Pennsylvania during the parade for creating a disturbance, police said.

Imman was charged with drunk driving and resisting arrest. Grubbs was charged with resisting arrest.

Chief Evan said these were just interim charges until the evidence gathered at the scene of the burglary could be processed and returned by the F.B.I. The report was returned Monday and definitely implicates the pair in the burglary, he said.

Corry Soldier Awarded Medal In Vietnam

CORRY—The U.S. Army in Vietnam has honored a Corry soldier for meritorious service while on duty at the Long Binh army installation.

Awarded the Army Commendation Medal in recent ceremonies was Sp-5 Jerry P. Waite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Waite of 302 East st. Waite is personnel management specialist in the Adjutant General Company.

He entered the Army in August of 1965 and had been in Vietnam since June of 1967.

According to the commendation, the 21-year-old serviceman "distinguished himself by exceptional meritorious service in support of allied counter-insurgency operations in the Republic of Vietnam. During the period between June 1967 and May 1968 he astutely surmounted extremely adverse conditions to obtain consistently superior results. His unrelenting loyalty, initiative and perseverance brought him wide acclaim and inspired others to strive for maximum achievement. Selflessly working long and arduous hours, he had contributed significantly to the success of the allied effort."

"The whole law and order thing," he said, could be one of the key convention issues.

However, Scott said, "I think we're going to get a pretty good platform this year. The common thread running through all this is a determination this year to stay united."

Scott said he would fight for a platform plank favoring fire arms registration and licensing if no firearms control law is passed by Congress before the convention meets in Miami Beach.

He said the platform submitted to delegates may recommend further cuts in federal appropriations for science and technology.

WAHS Band Takes Parade Honors

By FRANKLIN HOFF

Warren Area High School Band returned from the 49th annual convention of the Department of Pennsylvania, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, last week in Philadelphia, covered with glory. In addition to marching at the head of the great two hour long parade Friday evening, and presenting a musical program during the ceremonies on Saturday, installing Eugene R. Manfrey of Warren as the new state commander, the Warren Area High School Band came home with first prize for the Junior division of all entries in the parade.

As the WAHS Band marched at the head of the parade, through downtown Philadelphia to Independence Hall, they were judged on three categories: playing, marching and military bearing, to capture first prize. Over 120 members of the band participated, and in addition the smart WAHS color guard carried the banner of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

VFW State Commander Eugene R. Manfrey expressed great pride in the performance of his home town Warren Area High School Band on this great occasion, as he became the new leader of the 150,000-member Pennsylvania Department, largest in the nation.

The band traveled to Philadelphia in three chartered buses. They were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Harpster, Mr. and Mrs. Richard West, Warren County Commissioner

Dr. David Rice, Mr. and Mrs. John Stachowiak, and Mrs. Donald Rice of Warren, and Mrs. Paul Schirck of Clarendon. Advance arrangements had been made by Mr. and Mrs. Basil Trowbridge, covering transportation, lodging and liaison with the parade committee and convention authorities.

The band's appearance was in honor of the incoming commander, Eugene Manfrey. At the impressive ceremonies installing Manfrey as Commander on Saturday morning, the Warren Area High School Band was presented. They marched to the platform, and gave a program of five selections.

During the ceremonies Dr. David Rice, president Warren County Commissioners, presented a resolution from the Commissioners and the people of Warren County, expressing their gratitude in the recognition accorded Eugene Manfrey.

Rice, who was one of the local people, serving as a chaperone for the band, yesterday commended their parents and their director Dan Harpster, stating he had only highest praise for the decorous behavior of the young people while in Philadelphia.

Dr. Rice reports the manager of the Holiday Inn Motel at Media, where the band was lodged, had been dubious about housing such a large group of more than 100 young people, but, having been asked to open the swimming pool late Friday evening, did so with some reservations. The manager said he would be glad to have the group again.

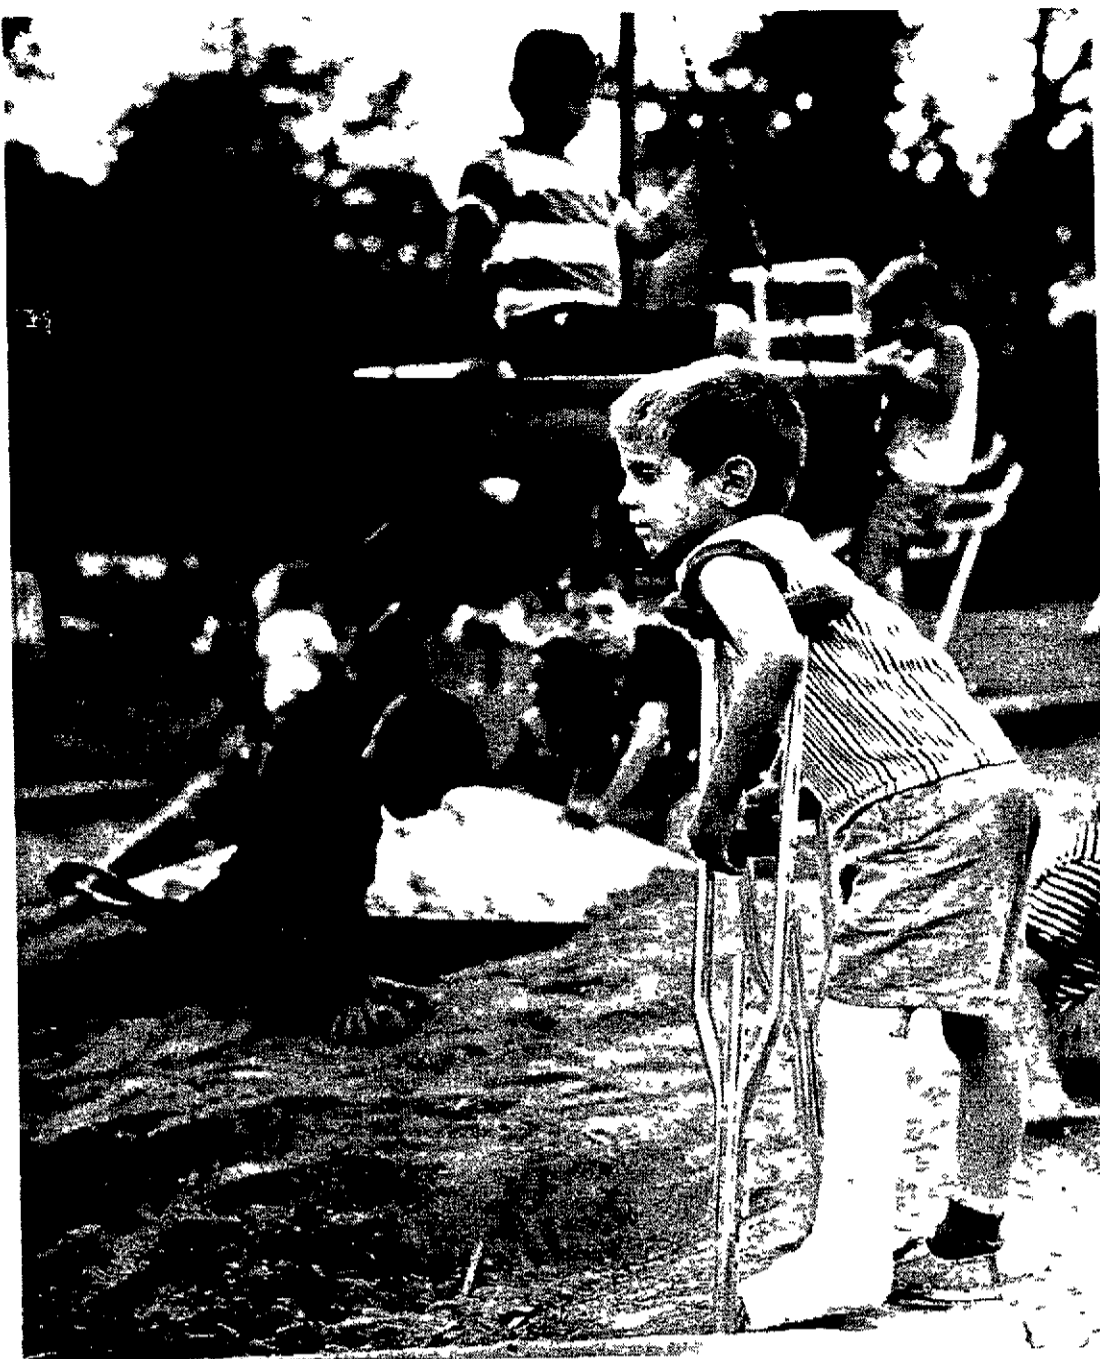

Members of the Rising Avenue VFW Post of Philadelphia and its auxiliary provided meals for the band and its entourage. Due to the lateness of the parade, dinner was actually served seven hours later than originally scheduled. Despite the delay, one auxiliary member, Dr. Rice said, stated it was a pleasing experience to have such a large group of kids who seemed so appreciative. The VFW also served breakfast and lunch on Saturday.

Speaking for himself and the other chaperones, Dr. Rice added it was a rewarding experience to accompany the band, whose members proved such good ambassadors for Warren, despite the hectic weekend.

The now famed Three Flags—of France, Great Britain and the United States—which were taken to Philadelphia, also graced the suite occupied by the Warren delegation.

Eight members of the Warren VFW marched with the 19th District group in the parade, in the fifth division.

WAHS Band director Dan Harpster says it was fortunate that two of the chaperones, Mrs. John Stachowiak and Mrs. Paul Schirck, were registered nurses. They performed indispensable services during the trip.

A LITTLE HAMPERED

Lincoln Sokolski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sokolski, 510 Fourth ave., will be free of his cumbersome cast in eight days. In the meantime, though, he isn't missing playground activities. And it feels mighty good to be out in the air on these hot and humid days even if one does have to just stand around and watch, particularly since Lincoln knows it won't be long before he'll be right back in there with the rest of the kids. 192 Fatal Shootings Reported Last Week Throughout Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arguments over a dish of homemade ice cream and whether a rifle should be brought into a house ended in two of the 192 fatal shootings that took place in the United States last week.

More than 80 per cent of the killings resulted from deliberate firing of a handgun, shotgun or rifle. There were 121 homicides, 40 suicides and 31 accidental shootings.

The count was taken in an Associated Press survey from midnight Sunday, July 7, to midnight Sunday, July 14, and followed a similar AP survey made the week that ended June 23.

In the June survey there were 199 gunshot deaths: 115 homicides, 65 suicides and 19 accidental fatal shootings.

The FBI reported that the weekly average of homicides numbered 125 in 1966, the last year for which figures were available.

Last week California had the highest gun death toll: 21 of which 10 were homicides, 10 were suicides and 1 was accidental.

Justice Fortas Slated For Committee Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas is slated to go before the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday and is expected to face some rough cross examination on his judicial philosophy as the panel considers his appointment as chief justice.

The hearing is likely to underscore the mixed party lineups that have shaped up since President Johnson announced selection of Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren and appointment of U.S. Circuit Judge Homer Thornberry to fill the court vacancy.

The party picture was further confused Monday when a Republican Senate leader endorsed the appointments while a Democratic Senate lieutenant said he will oppose confirmation of Fortas.

"In my opinion, both men are eminently qualified," Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., said. The assistant minority leader thus lined up beside his party's No. 1 Senate official.

Sen. Milton R. Young of North Dakota, who holds the GOP leadership post that corresponds with Byrd's on the Democratic side, is among 19 Republican senators who signed a statement declaring they would vote against any Supreme Court nominations submitted by Johnson before he leaves office.

The statement, initiated by Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, said that the filling of court vacancies should be left to the next president.

Fortas has been called for questioning Tuesday and Thornberry the next day. However, a committee aide said he doubts the questioning of Fortas could be completed in a day.

The longer committee action is delayed, the better chance opponents will have to block Senate confirmation before the Aug. 3 target date for adjournment of Congress.

Crimes Committed Using Guns To Draw Stiffer Penalties

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House passed a bill Monday to stiffen the penalty for committing a serious crime of violence while in possession of a firearm.

The measure, sent to the Senate, on a vote of 128-57, would provide for an additional five-to-ten years imprisonment over and above the penalty provided for the particular crime.

Backers of the proposal contended that it made more sense than legislation calling for the registration of guns, because it would affect only lawbreakers.

Opponents argued that the bill would not deter criminals from using guns in the commission of their crimes, but may discourage courts from finding defendants guilty because of the stiff penalty.

Crimes covered by the legislation would include murder, rape, robbery, burglary, kidnapping, participation in a riot and entering a building with intent to commit a crime.

Leading the opposition was House Democratic Leader Herbert Fineman of Philadelphia, a strong advocate of a gun registration proposal scheduled for a showdown Tuesday.

"This mandatory additional prison sentence could have the effect of causing a judge to find a defendant not guilty, rather than impose such a heavy penalty," Fineman said.

Rep. James J. Gallen, R-Berks, chief sponsor of the bill, chided Fineman for espousing gun control, while at the same time opposing stiff penalties for persons who use guns to commit crimes.

"Here's a bill that would do more than any measure that you have proposed to end the misuse of firearms," Gallen said in a floor speech.

The House also sent to the Senate a bill that would upgrade pension benefits for members of the legislature. There was no debate on the measure, approved 109-74.

The bill would raise the base on which the pensions are computed in line with salary increases the lawmakers voted for themselves in 1965.

Another provision would reduce from eight to six years the minimum service requirement for a legislator to become eligible for a pension at age 50. Any lawmaker over 50 is eligible for a pension regardless of number of years of service.

The House Liquor Control Committee released to the floor an amended version of a Senate-passed bill that would authorize Sunday sale of alcoholic beverages on a local option basis.

The legislation, as now written would allow municipalities to decide the question through local referendums. The Senate version called for county referendums.

The House committee also reduced from 55 to 30 per cent the amount of food an establishment must sell in order to qualify under provisions of the bill.

In other legislative developments: Salaries — The Senate rolled into position for a final vote a two-bill package proposing sizeable salary increases for members of seven state agencies.

Educational TV — The Senate sent to the House Shaffer administration legislation proposing creation of a Pennsylvania Public Television Network Commission.

Internal Affairs — The House passed the last of a package of bills to phase out the Department of Internal Affairs and transfer its functions to other state agencies. The measures went back to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

East Germans Turn Back West Germans at Border

BERLIN (AP) — West Germans with short memories and no passports were turned back at East German border crossing points Monday by Communist authorities.

Otherwise, traffic on the vital road links to and from West Berlin was reported normal.

Monday was the cutoff date set by the East Germans for West Germans wanting to set foot on East German territory to have valid passports. They are needed so that the East Germans can stamp their hammer and compass emblem inside as part of their visas.

A spokesman at the West German Helldorf crossing point said 85 West Germans had been turned back by East German border guards, mostly in the early morning hours. Later on, Western officers advised those without passports not to try to cross.

The spokesman said that most of the West Germans involved had either forgotten the cutoff date or thought it included Monday. Those turned back took it more or less quietly, he added.

Not figures were available for other West German border points. In West Berlin, a spokesman said it could not be determined how many were turned back since such returnees were mixed in with normally arriving travelers.

The passport regulation and accompanying visa fees are part of travel restrictions announced by the East Germans in June. They constitute a major new bid for recognition by forcing the individual West German and West Berliner to accept imposed designations as a price for travel through or in East Germany.

Previously, West Germans could use normal identity cards for such travel without visas or fees. West Berliners still may use identity cards, although they too must pay the fees and accept attached East German visas which describe the bearer as a "citizen of West Berlin."

In addition to trying to overcome Western nonrecognition of their regime, the East German Communists also are trying to underline their claim that West Berlin does not belong to West Germany.

"COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE"

THE ECLECTIC LOOK might seem more to belong to the Victorian era than our own, when it results in a cluttered room in which artifacts and mementoes overflow the tables and fill up every corner.

Actually, the word eclectic suggests a gathering from many sources. As a decorating theme it may mean creating a setting in which a collection is displayed . . . of antiques, of treasures from your travels, of items derived from a hobby.

The eclectic look may also apply to a room or a home furnished with pieces from many different periods in varied styles. It might include anything from an Oriental screen to a Louis XVI cabinet to a contemporary sofa.

Properly done, such a scheme can be highly individual and delightful. It will be most effective if you find ways to tie the disparate items together. Use a simple background of color, for instance. Try to find one object, such as a painting or area rug, which will be a focal point for the varied colors in the room. In other words, find a way to impose some kind of unity on your diversity.

Whether you're decorating your entire home in a single style, or looking for a fine individual piece, you'll enjoy looking through our fine furniture display. Come in soon.

Circus Worker Severely Burned

JAMESTOWN—Attendees at WCA Hospital Monday night described the condition of James Haas, 25, of Sheboygan, Wis., as "fair."

Haas an employee of Clyde B e a t y-Ringing Brothers Circus was severely burned in an accident Monday afternoon on the circus grounds in Falconer.

Hospital officials said Haas is suffering first, second and third degree burns. Ellicott Police Chief Rodney Vandstrom said Haas was burning a broken handle from a sledge hammer and in the process he tossed a pall of gasoline on the handle. The gasoline burst into flames and ignited his clothing.

Chief Vandstrom said his fellow circus employees wrestled Haas to the ground in an effort to smother the flames, but the victim was severely burned before the flames could be extinguished.

Bridegroom's Automobile Burglarized

An Erie man, scheduled to make his debut as a bridegroom in Warren on Saturday, received a wedding present that was neither useful nor practical.

Stolen from the glove compartment of his 1968 Chrysler, parked in the Penn Laurel Motel parking lot, were $600 in travelers checks and other items, including the wedding ring.

The victim was Arthur Althoff Jr., of 1617 W. 44th st., Erie, who told police he had locked his car at 8:30 p.m. Friday and upon returning to the vehicle discovered the theft.

At first, Althoff told police, he thought friends had played a practical joke since it was his wedding day. After checking with the rest of his wedding party, however, he became convinced the items were stolen.

Taken also were two pair of prescription glasses valued at $100 and a pair of ski goggles, $10, making a total loss of $745. Althoff formerly resided at New Holly Apartments.

Hartley Named Assistant Public Defender

MAYVILLE—A Lakewood attorney, Lynn L. Hartley, has been named assistant public defender, bringing that department's staff to full strength again.

County Public Defender William A. Arrison announced the appointment of Hartley to the $7,190 part time job Monday.

The staff in the public defenders office had been severely reduced for several months following the resignation of former Public Defender George Rogers of Mayville and his assistant Willard W. Cass of Frewsburg. As the new assistant, Hartley will be assigned to misdemeanor cases throughout the county.

A native of Amherst, Hartley is a 1967 graduate of the University of Syracuse Law School. He had been associated with the Jamestown law firm of Willard W. Cass since last August. He is also the attorney for Jamestown's Urban Renewal Agency.

Credit to Community

Congratulations to Eugene R. Manfrey and the Warren Area High School Band under the direction of Dan Harpster for bringing the name of Warren into the limelight over this past weekend.

Manfrey, a 37-year-old Warrenite, became commander of the 150,000-member state VFW organization to bring acclaim to the local and county posts as well as his community.

The high school band won distinction when the unit -- which led the parade -- won first place in the junior band division. In all 135 units participated.

Once again Warren, that little community in the woodlands of northwestern Pennsylvania, makes its mark.

MASON DENISON

A Startling Jump

HARRISBURG — When the Shafer Administration's half-billion-dollar capital construction budget was released for floor action in the House of Representatives the other day, a number of legislative eyebrows were raised skyward.

It wasn't so much the budget itself that startled many a legislative brow. Nor was it the size of the budget -- although some did cringe, more in resignation than anything else, at the half-billion-dollar tag.

What did catch the eye of most lawmakers was the startling jump from the $3.6 million allocation proposal contained in the budget for Cheyney State College originally (when the Governor submitted the fiscal document) to near $15 million for the institution projected in the amended version released for floor consideration.

The answer, one might say, is fairly simple. Cheyney State College, in the southeastern part of the state, is predominantly Negro -- and it was at Cheyney four months ago that clamoring and protesting students in demonstrations, closed down the facility for three days.

The fact that it is predominantly a Negro institution is not regarded, at this point at least, as a factor in the uprising that closed down the facility last March.

It should be noted that student demands at the time centered around complaints of inadequate facilities in almost every respect of the operation of Cheyney State College -- one of 14 such institutions of higher learning operated solely by the state.

SYLVIA PORTER

Safe Deposit Box

Do you know precisely what is in your safe deposit box?

If your safe deposit box were burglarized, would you know at once what claims to make, what papers to try to duplicate or replace?

Do you periodically check your box's contents to make sure your documents are up to date and you haven't overlooked important deadlines for action on your securities, your insurance policies, other matters?

Do you have records OUTSIDE your box to prove what is IN your box and the value of the contents?

The answer to each of these questions should be a firm "yes," but I openly confess that I recently had to answer each with a shamefaced "no."

To explain: After years of maintaining a box in my name in a location which is now out of the way for both of us, we made the decision that I should go to the box to check its contents and to arrange a transfer to a more convenient area. As I went through the box, I became stupefied by my own stupidity. Here were valuables I had forgotten we had, contracts I had vainly searched for, documents which had become obsolete and worthless.

As I reviewed the contents, I asked myself: "What if the box had been burglarized?" (It happens rarely...but it happens.) "What claims could we have made with assurance?" "What records would we have had and where would we have found them to prove the validity of any claim?"

Ask yourself these questions about your own box and I suspect you'll be as humble as I was.

What, then, should you do? If you also have been lax, do at least these eight things:

(1) Go to your safe deposit box at your early convenience and thoroughly check its contents.

(2) Start a list of what is in your box and put the list in a safe place at home.

(3) Keep this inventory up to date.

(4) Collect receipts or other papers which prove you own the items in the box and put them in a safe place outside the box.

(5) Check your insurance coverage to find out if it covers the contents of your safe deposit box and if so, to what extent it insures you against loss.

(6) Check the agreement you sign or have signed with the institution from which you rent your box to find out if the agreement includes clauses which limit your protection.

(7) Be sure your wills are where they should be, in the safekeeping of your lawyer or in your strongbox at home and not in your safe deposit box.

(8) Check with each other (husband and wife) on the location of your safe deposit box, the number of the box, the contents of the box, the place where you keep the keys. If the box is in both your names, each of you should have a key.

The odds are overwhelmingly against any loss of the contents of your safe deposit box due to a robbery or some other catastrophe. This is obvious from the way boxes are built and the location of the vaults. But this doesn't lessen the importance of knowing what is in your box and of taking basic precautions to protect yourself against loss due to your own ignorance or neglect.

Because of my own failure, I am capable of writing this list of rules. Let them jog you into appropriate actions to benefit yourself.

LBJ Tells Story on Winnie

WASHINGTON—At last week's cabinet meeting, President Johnson was reporting on his Central American trip, particularly his talks with the presidents of Honduras and Salvador. These two countries had been at loggerheads in regard to certain problems, but Johnson had sat with their presidents last week in an effort to work out their difficulties.

Johnson then digressed to tell his cabinet the story of how Winston Churchill when prime minister had received a visit from a little lady representing the Prohibitionist party. She accused him of drinking enough brandy to fill half a room.

"Lady," replied Churchill, holding out his hand to indicate half the depth of the room, "so much done, so much yet to go."

Referring to Latin America, the President concluded: "There's so much more to be done, and so little time left to do it."

He then started going around the cabinet table asking Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman whether he could send farm advisers to Central America, whether Housing Secretary Robert Weaver could send housing experts, and so on.

Note—The SNAFU President Johnson straightened out between Salvador and Honduras occurred when Salvadorian troops chased a handful of Honduran farmers, who had crossed the border, back into Honduran territory. Whereupon the Honduran army arrested the Salvadorian troops. Both countries mobilized, and considerable public passion developed on both sides.

Despite the legal pundits on the Senate Judiciary Committee, there is ample precedent for the resignation of Chief Justice Earl Warren subject to the confirmation of his successor.

This was exactly what President Theodore Roosevelt did when Associate Justice Horace Gray resigned from the Supreme Court in 1902.

Justice Gray wrote Teddy Roosevelt a letter very similar to that written by Chief Justice Warren last month. He said:

"July 9, 1902
"Dear Mr. President,
"Being advised by my physicians that to hold the office of Justice of the Supreme Court for another term may seriously endanger my health, I have decided to avail myself of the privilege allowed by Congress to judges of 70 years of age, and I should resign to take effect immediately, but for a doubt whether a resignation to take effect at a future day, or on the appointment of my successor, may be more agreeable to you."

"Wishing that the first notice of my intention should go to yourself, I have not as yet mentioned it to any one else."

"Very respectfully and truly yours,
"Horace Gray"

In reply, President Roosevelt specifically stated: "I will ask that the resignation take effect on the appointment of your successor." Then he added this interesting postscript: "Personal

Have Gun, Will Travel

PARIS—You would think after all the United States has done for Europe, the least the Europeans could do is make it easy for an American to buy a gun. But such is not the case. In spite of their great claims to be civilized, the Europeans are still living in the Dark Ages when it comes to making firearms available to the public.

I discovered this accidentally when I was overhauled by a waiter in a Left Bank cafe. He claimed it was an accident, but I knew he did it on purpose.

I told my wife I was getting sick and tired of being pushed around, and the only thing to do was buy a gun and carry it with me at all times. Then if someone tried to overcharge me, I'd let him have it.

"Isn't that a bit strong?" my wife asked.

"It's the American way," I said. "Can you think of a better reason for using a gun than when you get the business from a surly cafe waiter?"

The next day I went to a gun store near the Paris Opera and told them I wanted a revolver.

"What do you want it for?" the dealer asked.

"I am an American citizen," I said, "and according to our Constitution I am allowed to bear arms, any place, any time, anywhere. Now be a good man and give me a gun."

"We cannot sell a gun just like that, monsieur," the dealer said. "We have regulations in France concerning guns."

"Regulations?" I said incredulously. "What on earth for?"

"The French government does not want everyone in the country to have a gun. There is too much chance of accidents."

"That doesn't bother us in the United States," I said with a certain amount of pride. "Do you know last year we had over 5,000 people killed by firearms alone?"

"Alas," said the dealer, sadly. "We only had 12. The rules here are too strict."

"Don't you have a National Rifle Assn.?"

"We have something like it, but parliament tells them what they can or cannot do."

"In my country," I boasted, "the National Rifle Assn. tells Congress what it can or cannot do."

"Quelle chance," the dealer said. "Please, sir, what can I do for you?"

suppose must not be made public because it might mistakenly be held to imply that I had anticipated a change in the Chief Justiceship. If through any accident to my friend the Chief Justice, and was such a vacancy, it had been my intention to appoint you to it.

This is the time, as Congress rushes toward adjournment, that the lobbyists always try to sneak in their special interest legislation. Recently the House Public Works and Rules Committee cleared for floor action a bill to permit a doubling of the present weight of those big trailer trucks that rumble along the highway.

Opponents of the measure fear it may even allow triple-trailer trucks, resembling small freight trains, in interstate traffic.

The House sponsor of this monstrosity is Rep. John Kluczyński, D-Ill. Obviously fearful of debate after the Public Works Committee considered it behind closed doors, Kluczyński moved that the committee approve it immediately, without discussion.

"Wait a minute," objected Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa. "You promised opponents, including myself, that we would have ample opportunity to discuss this measure."

Reps. Richard McCarthy, D-N.Y., and Robert Everett, D-Tenn., backed up Schwengel. While Kluczyński squirmed, the committee finally agreed to 40 minutes of debate. However, only six members—Schwengel, McCarthy, Everett, and Reps. James Kee, D-W. Va., James Cleveland, R-N.H., and Robert McEwen, R-N.Y.—opposed the bill.

"You all remember the disaster in my area, when a bridge between West Virginia and Ohio collapsed, killing and injuring a number of people," declared Kee. "Heavy trucks were partly to blame. If we approve this bill, we will invite more tragedies."

"The Department of Transportation has raised no objections to this legislation," broke in Rep. William Cramer, R-Fla., a long-time friend of the trucking lobby. "It must be all right."

"If that is so, why are you proponents trying to shut off adequate discussion?" asked Schwengel. "This issue, involving not only increased weight but increased width of trucks on the highways, is highly crucial to public safety."

"The states will still have the right to set their own limits, according to my understanding," said Rep. Frank Clark, D-Pa. "This is a good bill."

Chairman George Fallon, D-Md., sat silent during the closed-door, 40-minute discussion and let Kluczyński and others carry the ball. When it was over, Fallon voted with Kluczyński and the trucking lobby.

"This committee has done no credit to itself by following the gag rule, in effect," objected Schwengel. "You have rammed this bill down our throats, without ample time for opponents. I've still got a lot of questions that I am unable to ask."

"I've been railroaded before, but this is the first time I've been trucked," quipped Everett of Tennessee.

The Dream Ticket

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Three weeks of following politics from the sidelines raises the question whether any of the candidates can win. The political news leaves the impression that Humphrey is too close to Johnson, McCarthy is too far from the pros, Rockefeller is too liberal for the Republicans, and the new Nixon is too much like the old Nixon.

Perhaps this is why there is so much talk this year about a Dream Ticket. At this stage in 1964, when Lyndon Johnson was contemplating the pleasures of running against Barry Goldwater, his search for a vice presidential candidate was concentrated on the question of who would damage him the least. This year, the problem seems to be to find a running mate who can bring in enough votes to rescue one of the presidential candidates.

The original 1968-model Dream Ticket was Rockefeller and Reagan -- New York and California, Liberal and Conservative. It is still a logical pairing, if only because the two governors have to stand together to stop Nixon at the convention, and he cannot conceivably be stopped if they don't.

But when Rockefeller appeared receptive, many of his liberal Republican supporters went up in smoke; and now that he is trying to woo voters who supported Robert Kennedy, an alliance with Reagan seems even more incongruous.

This Dream Ticket, in fact, is aimed primarily at helping Rockefeller win the nomination, not the election.

Now a new Republican Dream Ticket is making news -- Nixon and Lindsay, a shotgun wedding if ever there was one. Nixon gave it currency when he quoted the influential Gov. Rhodes of Ohio as favoring it, and it is attractive because Lindsay might provide the appeal to the cities that Nixon lacked in 1960.

The constitutional problem of their New York residency could probably be managed. But could Lindsay, one of the loudest critics of the Rockefeller-Reagan idea, really join forces effectively with a man he so profoundly disagrees with on the paramount issues of the war in Vietnam and the crisis in the cities? Nixon would certainly not be credible if he moved very far toward Lindsay on these matters.

The Democratic Dream Ticket is said to be Humphrey and Edward Kennedy. A Harris poll (taken in the emotional aftermath of Robert Kennedy's murder) suggested that the youngest Kennedy brother would add about five million votes to a Humphrey ticket, and if these results are still true near convention time the pressures on behalf of this Dream Ticket will be fearful to behold -- or to try to withstand.

Yet, Kennedy would be lending, and Humphrey would be accepting, the Kennedy name to a cause that Robert Kennedy categorically rejected just before his death. And to the extent that Humphrey's problem is the dissidence of Democrats who deeply oppose the Johnson administration and the war in Vietnam, Edward Kennedy on the ticket would not heal the party split.

On the other hand, Kennedy on the ticket clearly would soothe the fears and ease the guilt of Democrats who oppose the war, are lukewarm at best about supporting President Johnson's No. 2 man, yet who want to remain "regular" and who are, in any case, unenthusiastic about McCarthy.

As for the lesser Democratic Dream Ticket, Humphrey and McCarthy, it would be no solution at all for the vice president even if McCarthy were not strongly opposed. Those Democrats who most fiercely oppose Humphrey, and who most fervently follow McCarthy, would be totally outraged by any such political deal. A Humphrey-McCarthy ticket would only guarantee their disaffection.

Thus, none of the Dream Tickets is a panacea for what ails the presidential candidates and their parties. But neither was, say, the Democratic ticket of Kennedy and Johnson in 1960. A Dream Ticket, in fact, is never more or less than a practical, often blatant, even cynical compromise, designed to win a nomination or an election.

This device has been acceptable and usually successful in an American politics that has had to cope with profound sectional, ethnic, economic and social differences, and which as a result has developed non-ideological, coalition parties whose primary aim has been to win power. If those necessities still exist, the chances are good that at least one of the Dream Tickets, despite all outcries, will emerge from the conventions again this year.

THE HARRIS SURVEY

A shadow of uncertainty over this uncertain political year are the indicated 10 million votes former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama would receive were the elections held today. Running on a third-party ticket, Wallace is polling approximately 15 per cent of the vote nationwide. How that vote is finally distributed may determine who will be the next President of the United States.

Here are the key facts about the Wallace vote today: —For every vote he would take away from Hubert Humphrey or Eugene McCarthy on the Democratic line, Wallace currently takes nearly two votes away from either Richard Nixon or Nelson Rockefeller on the Republican line. With Wallace out of the race, the GOP would be at least 3 points stronger.

—A threshold for Wallace voters is the decision of whether to vote for the former Alabama governor or for former Vice President Nixon. A major determinant looking in the Wallace vote today is the conviction of 57 per cent of these people that "Nixon has lost too many elections" and presumably cannot win this year if nominated. Wallace voters are considerably more convinced that Nixon cannot win the electorate as a whole. Therefore, they reason, they will not be throwing their vote away on Wallace, but rather will be registering a meaningful protest.

—Over half the Wallace vote comes from the South; 2 out of every 3 are men; over 6 in 10 come from small towns and rural America; 99 per cent are white; 85 per cent are Protestant. Wallace draws twice as many votes from those whites who never went past the eighth grade as from those who have been to college.

—Outside the South, Wallace is drawing more heavily from voters who cast their ballots for Barry Goldwater four years ago than from any other single bloc. Thus far, he has not mobilized a significant backlash vote in the big Northern cities from low-income, ethnic minorities who are hostile to accelerating the rate of civil rights for Negroes. If Wallace were to make inroads into this group, he could not only add another 5 or 6 points to his overall showing, but could hurt the Democratic Party appreciably.

—Wallace has a generally negative profile among all voters, but is admired by 77 per cent for "having the courage to say what he really thinks." His strongest campaign appeal is the promise to turn back race relations to the states, an idea rejected by the American public as a whole by only a narrow 41-to-37 per cent margin. Almost a third of the nation thinks he can "keep law and order the way it should be kept," if elected President, although 4 in 10 disagree.

—The biggest handicaps of the Wallace candidacy are not nearly so much that he is viewed as a "racist," held by 47 per cent, but rather that he is an "extremist," believed by 55 per cent, and that he is a "sectional candidate," held by 63 per cent. The public by and large is evenly divided on the proposition that Wallace is "dangerous because he is trying to divide America."

Here is how the total Wallace vote today is distributed among key categories in the population compared with the percentages each group normally contributes to the whole electorate:

DR. AND MRS. A. FOLLMER YERG on Saturday entertained local and out-of-town friends at an unusual supper party, held on the spacious lawn of their 100-year-old home. Probably the most unique affair of the current social season, it was held in observance of the 100th anniversary of the home in which they reside at 318 Liberty street. While guests attended dressed in the fashions of 1868, or 1968, the highlight of the affair was this carriage loaned by Dennis R. Ferrie of RD 2, Russell, owner of the Conewago Museum on Conewago avenue ext. In its time, it transported one of Warren County's early "horse and buggy" doctors to and from his calls. It was restored to its present state of shining beauty by Mr. Ferrie.

Among the guests who marked the occasion by appearing in costumes ranging from the Mid-Victorian to Mod, one sextette, clad in the bathing attire of yesteryear, arrived via tandem bike! Most of the activity centered on the Yergs' lovely lawn and garden—Possible because the weatherman fully cooperated and provided an ideal summer evening! Photography buffs had a field day as each guest arrived costumed in keeping with the theme of 1868 or 1968. It was a simply delightful evening according to my informant, Betty Rice, who was among those present. (Photo by Mansfield)

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was surprised that you made reference to the surgeon who took off the wrong leg by mistake. The medical profession doesn't like that kind of publicity.

Several years ago my wife was in the hospital for a spinal disc operation. The morning she was scheduled for surgery, a physician walked into her room and said in his cheeriest voice, "You certainly don't look like a woman of 68." My wife replied, "I HOPE I don't. I'm 45." The doctor gulped and stammered, "Uh, I must have the wrong chart here." He left and returned a few moments later with the correct chart.

Heaven only knows what would have happened if the mistake had not been discovered. The woman whose chart the doctor held may have been scheduled for a gall bladder operation or a thyroidectomy. I'm writing to alert you to the fact that doctors are not God. They are human beings who make mistakes, just like everyone else, and it pays to check on them. — HUSBAND OF A NEAR-VICTIM

Dear Husband: Thank you for your letter. I knew before you wrote that doctors are not God and they make mistakes like everyone else. I have expressed those very sentiments in this column on numerous occasions.

Dear Ann Landers: I accepted a job with this organization eight months ago today. A woman I met here impressed me as extremely bright and friendly. I liked her at once. Now the problem:

This woman has worn the same washable two-piece corduroy outfit every day since we met. She is not hard up financially. Her husband has a top-notch position and she also makes an excellent salary. I have been to their home and seen several dresses hanging in her closet. When I asked her why she never wore them she replied, "They are too large. I used to be quite heavy." I offered to give her the name of my alteration lady but she said, "It wouldn't be worth it."

The woman is neat and clean, but can you imagine what that corduroy suit looks like after being worn every day for eight months? I do believe the dear lady will wear that suit to her grave. Would she be offended if I presented her with a decent dress in her size? — WACO

Dear Waco: Save your money. Your friend has a psychological thing going with that corduroy suit and she will continue to wear it until it falls off her back. Be thankful that she is neat and clean and don't make her hang-up your problem.

Dear Ann Landers: Can you tell me please what the duties of a minister's wife are? When is she supposed to find time for her own family and the activities she considers fun and not obligations? I've asked this question of several friends who are married to ministers and they don't know the answer. Do you? — DAWN TO DUSK HELPMATE

Dear Dawn: This problem is one you ought to talk over with your clergyman.

Confidential to Hoot Owl: Of course you can't sleep nights. You sleep days. Drag your carcass out of bed in the morning and fix breakfast for your family. Perhaps if you were a self-starter your husband wouldn't have to be a crank.

Nuptial Vows Exchanged In Two Harbors, Minnesota

MR. AND MRS. GARY SORENSEN

Miss Cindy Haack and Gary Sorensen exchanged nuptial vows in a recent evening candle-light wedding service held in the First Baptist Church at Two Harbors, Minn. The Rev. Jack Smith, pastor, read the double ring wedding rites. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Haack of East Star route, Two Harbors, Minn., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sorensen of 414 Cobham Park road, Warren.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Helge Jackson of Duluth, Minn., organist, and Mrs. Gene Schreyer, soloist. Baskets of white carnations and pink daisies ornamented the church.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace. The basque bodice had a sabrina neckline embroidered with iridescent, and long sleeves. The full gracefully sweeping skirt of the gown had an attached chapel train. A princess crown of pearls and crystals secured her waterfall veil, and she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor for her sister, was Joni Haack, in a long gown of blush pink with chiffon overcoat. Her veil was held by floral petals of tulle and Venetian lace and she carried a single pink rose. Susie Fitzpatrick was the bridesmaid and was costumed identically.

Ronald Sorensen of Grand Rapids, Minn., brother of the groom was the best man, and John Merritt, nephew of the groom, from Joliet, Ill., was the groomsman.

The mother of the bride chose a street length dress of aqua lace with accessories to match, and had a matching corsage of carnations. The mother of the groom chose a street length

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Last year we bought an above ground, 15-foot plastic swimming pool for the children — along with a plastic pool cover.

The cover kept out the bugs and leaves, but when it rained, the cover would fill up with water and submerge.

At best it was a two-man job to cover and uncover the pool. Plus the fact that it cost $10. By the end of the season the plastic had split and the elastic edges were all torn away.

So this year I decided to get 18 yards of your wonderful and inexpensive nylon net. I cut it in three even pieces and zig-zagged the widths together on my sewing machine making a large square.

Then with the help of the children, I spread it over the pool and taped it in place, being sure to have plenty of overhang. I took my scissors and snipped away until it was round. Then back to the sewing machine where I turned the edge under several times and zig-zagged this hem for reinforcement.

The problem of how to hold it over the pool was solved when I bought enough 1/4"-wide elastic to go around the pool. We pulled it snug around the top edge, tied the ends together and left it right there where it doesn't show.

When we slip on the net, we just tuck it under that elastic and it's all set. The net is completely washable and so light that my sons can put it on themselves without my help.

We just fold the net back each morning — leaves, bugs and all, throw it over the clothesline and in a few minutes it's dry and all the leaves and insects just shake right out.

DEAR HELOISE:

When my old vinyl-covered TV pillows tore out at the seams beyond repair, I cut them apart with pinking shears and made bookmarks dress of yellow with matching accessories and corsage of carnations.

The wedding reception was held in the social rooms of the church with one hundred and fifty guests attending.

For a honeymoon trip through Minneapolis, the Black Hills of South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana, the new Mrs. Sorensen wore a traveling ensemble of pink crepe and lace with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Sorensen are now at home on East Star Route, Two Harbors, Minn.

The bride has completed a year at the Duluth Business University and the groom has completed two years at Eastern Nazarene College at Quincy, Mass., but will resume his studies at Rochester, N.Y., in September.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the North Shore dining room in Two Harbors.

The wedding was attended by guests from Warren; Grand Rapids and Princeton, Minn.; and Joliet, Ill.

ARE SHOES
TIGHT OR JUST NEW?

There is real danger to a child's foot health to assume that the shoes purchased for Easter, still fit. The shoes perhaps were worn very little and still look like new, yet we must face the fact that children's feet grow more in Spring and early Summer than they do the rest of the year. We can let out pants, cuffs, but shoes never stretch lengthwise.

Here is the danger — garbage men don't smell garbage. They probably do when they start on the job and when they come back from a vacation but their sense of smell tires of sending the same message to the brain. Children don't feel the pinch of tight shoes if they wear them long enough to "get used" to the tightness.

Most of our foot trouble is caused by ill-fitting shoes that stop hurting when the nerves stop sending the "hurt" message to the brain.

SUN SHINES FOR WELCOME WAGON LUNCHEON

The Welcome Wagon Club's "Luncheon Under the Elms" this year was held in a setting of green rolling hills and woodlands, at the home of Mrs. Robert McAbee, 1043 E. Fifth ave. ext. on Thursday of last week. Guests were seated at tables arranged around a spacious patio in a colorful setting of flowers that looked, at first glance, as if they had been flown over from Hawaii that day. For, what mother nature didn't provide in the line of exotic flowers, the artistic members of the Welcome Wagon luncheon committee did; they fashioned by hand a profusion of brightly hued blooms and placed them here and there to add to the beauty of the scene. Centering each table was a miniature bouquet of freshly cut flowers. Mrs. McAbee is pictured with, from left to right, Mrs. John Lavey, Mrs. C. C. DEAR FOLKS:

My family loves pineapple upside-down cake. It takes me a little longer to make them, but they sure look pretty with the pineapple rings and delicious goo on top.

It used to break my heart, however, to see the icing crumble and stick when it was cut after it cooled. So last week I held a knife under the hot water faucet a few seconds and then cut that beautiful cake.

By gum, that hot, wet knife cut through the sticky icing like hot butter. No crumbling, sticking or chunks.

BABIES MEET GREAT-GRANDMOTHER

To become a great-grandmother finally was a reality for Mrs. Sarah Rulander when she saw her great-granddaughters for the first time, recently. Her grandson, Capt. Franklin V. Young Jr., his wife, Virginia, and two daughters, Christi An, age 2½ years, and Cynthia Kay, age 5 months, arrived from Japan, where the Captain had been serving for three years with the 5th Air Force Headquarters. The enclosed picture show the Captain holding Christi An; Mrs. Sarah Rulander, great-grandmother, holding Cynthia Kay. In the middle is the Captain's mother (who is the daughter of Mrs. Rulander), Mrs. Frank (Gladys) Young.

Vows Exchanged In Sugar Grove Church

Bonnie Jean Rarey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rarey of Warren, and Terry Leroy Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart of Sugar Grove, were married at an early summer wedding in the presence of the immediate families in the First Presbyterian Church of Sugar Grove.

The Rev. Donald Spencer of the First Presbyterian Church of Warren performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Lauffenberger of Russell attended the couple.

The bride wore a lace-bodiced tulle gown cut with empress lines, shoulder-length veil and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white Shasta daisies. The mother of the bride wore a blue and white print dress. Mrs. Stuart, mother of the groom, chose a beige lace dress with white accessories. Both mothers were honored with corsages of pink and white roses. A reception followed the ceremony at the church with seventy-five relatives and friends present. The bride and groom are employed at West Penn Oil Company at North Warren. The new Mr. and Mrs. Stuart are residing in Youngsville.

West's somewhat naive attempt to place a red herring in his opponents' path served only to incite them in today's hand to go the full limit.

When the bidding reverted to West in third position, he felt that the opposition possessed sufficient assets to score substantially inasmuch as he had very little himself, and East had failed to open the bidding in an effort to talk North and South out of their heritage. West put in a very light third seat bid of one heart.

North, with 21 points in high cards alone, had a very sound vulnerable take-out double East decided to show his modest values while it was convenient to do so by raising his partner to two hearts. South possessed a sound hand facing a take-out double; however, he contented himself with making a simple free bid of three diamonds, to give North an opportunity to clarify his holding.

By this time, it had become obvious to North that someone around the table was not telling the truth. The 19 high card points that he was missing could hardly add up to an opening bid plus calls from the two remaining players. Since South was presumed to be honest, then one or both of the opponents must be guilty of exaggerating their values.

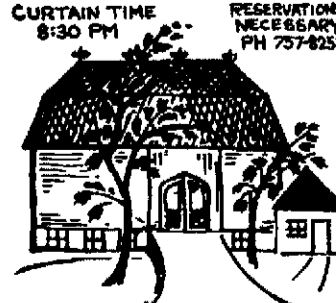

In order to announce his overwhelming strength and at the same time expose the "gay deceivers"—North made a cue bid of three hearts which was, of course, unconditionally forcing on his partner. South reasoned that he had considerable in reserve for his mere free bid on the previous round and, in order to show the limit of his hand, he jumped to five clubs. Although he was not certain of the ultimate contract, North's cue bid had implied a fit, and South wished to alert him to the partnership's full potential on the deal.

When North heard the jump in clubs, he was reasonably certain that his holding in the minors would completely solidify South's hand, and he bid seven diamonds. The play proved to be routine. After drawing trump, declarer was able to discard dummy's small heart on a high club and then ruff out his own heart loser.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR TUESDAY, JULY 16, 1968.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Be guided by past experience so as to avoid possible errors. Don't be side-tracked by non-essentials and DO stress your sense of values; also, your innate zeal and enthusiasm. TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Venus highly favorable. Your versatility and talent for getting along with people should stand you in good stead now. Restoring, refurbishing, artistic interests generally favored.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Your energies should be geared to a high pitch now but, in your eagerness to get ahead, don't overtax yourself. You can accomplish a great deal but, remember: Easy does it!

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Generally, this day calls for astuteness. Be careful to neither over-evaluate nor under-estimate. Some clever strategy may be needed in ticklish situations.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—If the first or second try does not succeed, review: Maybe you should change a part or all of your method. Just do NOT give up a worthwhile goal.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Do not procrastinate in matters which demand time and energy. Neither take on extra-curricular activities which could clutter your schedule. Don't waste time on trivia.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Look for the best ways to handle your duties: There are always improved methods, devices, implements. And YOU can be the one to devise them.

How to Keep Well

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

CONTROLLING CHOLESTEROL

Anticoagulants made medical headlines twice recently. These drugs prevent blood from clotting. A standard anticoagulant, diphenadione, was given to young chickens suffering from manmade hardening of the arteries. It reduced their cholesterol level by 36 per cent. Vitamin K1 was given simultaneously to prevent bleeding tendencies associated with taking these products. The same combination was then given to 5-year-old pigeons with natural arteriosclerosis. There was a regression of their vessels. Encouraging as these results may seem, time will tell whether the risk of using an anticoagulant is warranted to lower the cholesterol level.

Individuals with a sluggish thyroid gland also have an elevated cholesterol. This is the rationale behind the use of thyroid extract in lowering the level. Many of the thyroid agents, such as dextrothyroxine and L-triiodothyronine do the same. But again, we must warn against the side effects of these drugs when high blood pressure, known heart disease, and advanced liver or kidney disease coexist.

Many people with too much cholesterol also have gallstones. This may demonstrate that too much of the fatty substance is being eliminated from the liver via bile into the intestine where it is absorbed. We tend to concentrate on the cholesterol content in food, forgetting that our own bodies manufacture 60 per cent of the substance and other fatty molecules that reach the blood.

A new product, clofibrate, inhibits cholesterol production in the liver. Cholestyramine, an experimental drug, prevents the cholesterol-rich bile from being absorbed by the intestine. As of this writing, the SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—You can make headway in most matters, but some concessions may be obligatory. Do not take on new ventures without thorough investigation. This is no day for acting blindly.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Be alert to all opportunities. You may not attain all that you wish, but day can be more than just satisfying, and can lead to happy rewards soon.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Saturn favorable. If you cannot attain in one way, you can in another. Many "impossibles" are possible now, and you can break past records. Don't underrate small gains, however.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—An especially fine set-up for additional and better-than-anticipated earnings. Planetary influences stimulate your special brand of quick wit, affability and sociability.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Express ideas discreetly but firmly. Don't leave stones unturned which may have gems beneath. Take the time to organize a really efficient system: Rewards will be big.

YOU BORN TODAY are far in appraisals of people and projects, yet are not always cognizant of your own possibilities. A striver, you can always play with zest, then step into work shoes quickly with smooth transition. You love deeply, but are not always demonstrative; are unusually sensitive. Polite and generous, you may give through sympathy rather than calculated reasoning. Today's child achieves because "to do" rather than "to watch" is his motto, yet he is a keen observer, a quiet listener. Birthdate of: Sir Joshua Reynolds, painter.

agent has not been approved by the FDA. And so it goes: cholesterol, now a household word, is regarded as the heart's number one enemy, yet many physicians disagree.

TOMORROW: Screening for Breast Cancer. Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

WOMAN'S CYCLE SHORTER

A. A. C. writes: What would cause a change in cycle from 28 to 21 days in a 33-year-old woman?

REPLY
The most likely cause is a disturbance in the hormonal system. It need not be of serious origin. Our leaflet on menstrual irregularities discusses this and other problems with the menses. It can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

STRETCHING HIS ULCER
Mrs. T. writes: I know a man with an ulcer who claims he can't paint walls or do any household chores because he would stretch his ulcer. The man's wife has to do all these things. Must he be this careful?

REPLY
The usual peptic ulcer is not stretched by physical exercise, because the stomach is freely movable and not jarred by bending and stretching. He will have to find a more original excuse.

TEMPER HURTS EARS
R. R. writes: Whenever I become upset and lose my temper, my ears hurt. What causes this condition?

REPLY
Some individuals develop a burning sensation of the ears during periods of emotional distress. The same mechanism may be responsible for pain.

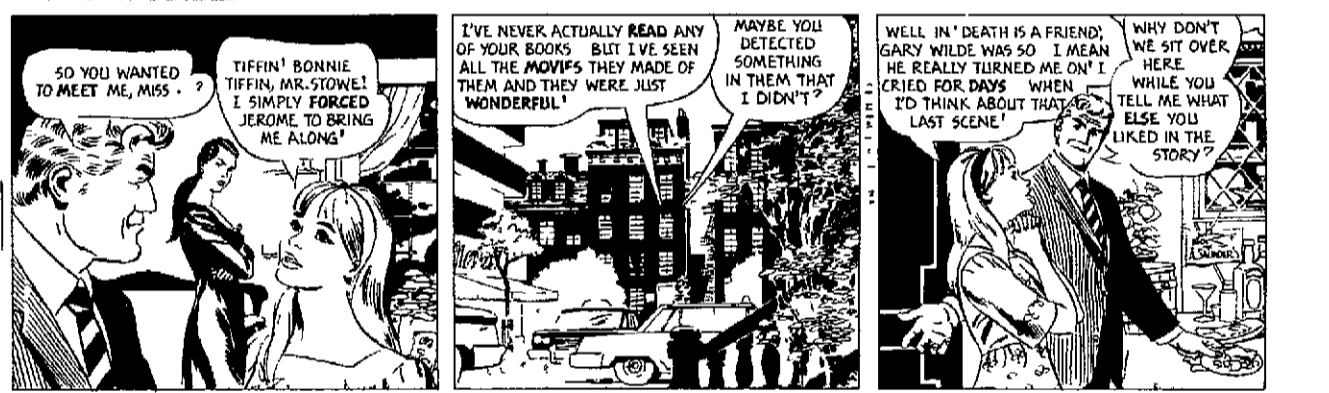

NOT ALWAYS CANCER
A. Y. writes: Is an adenoma a form of cancer?

REPLY
Not always. Some of these tumors are benign.

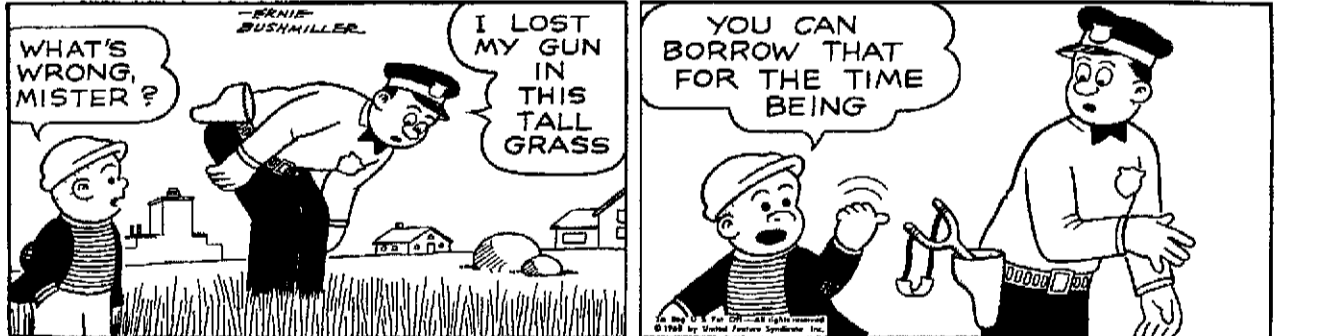

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT—Continuous buzzing in the ears should be investigated.

BIG DEAL

NEW YORK—Mephistopheles looked up from the papers and eyed the applicant with new respect. "Quite the most remarkable request of this sort I've ever received," he said benignly.

The applicant, a tall, handsome man whose gray hair curled over his collar, remained stiff and uncomfortable. "I filled out all the forms, and I would appreciate a direct yes-or-no answer," he said. "I didn't think you would make this so devilishly difficult. Of course," hastened to add, "I do not use the word 'devilish' in any pejorative sense."

"Nor do I, Mr. Burke," smiled Mephistopheles. "But please relax. You see, your request has implications." "A potion to restore youth has been your most famous enticement for centuries."

"Aha," barked Mephistopheles, "but that is precisely the trouble. Dr. Faustus, for all his other lusts, was positively insatiable on the subject of personal publicity. Imagine the ego of the man! Another mortal would have been content to have his fling and go his way, but that conceited idiot managed to get his story told by Marlowe, by Goethe, by badness knows who else."

"Ever since, more than 78 per cent of all requests reaching my office concern restoration of youth," Mephistopheles concluded, calming down.

"Then my request should be routine," Burke said, feeling a trifle bolder. "What's the problem?"

"The problem," Mephistopheles replied, is the twist. When a man offers to sell me his soul in exchange for youth, wisdom, riches, sensual delights and perhaps a short-term immortality, it's simple enough. But what exactly is your offer, Mr. Michael Burke of the New York Yankees? You offer me your soul in exchange for youth—but not for yourself. You ask for youth for another person, someone named —" Mephistopheles glanced down at the triplicate forms—"Mickey Mantle."

"That's right," said Burke. "I pledged myself to stop at nothing in trying to revive the Yankees."

"But the motivation, man, the motivation," Mephistopheles interrupted, with growing impatience. "You've brought an entirely nonvenal element into the picture. The traditional Faustian request is the ultimate in selfishness. Yours is tinged—nay, I might say suffused, with selflessness."

"I assure you," said Burke intensely, "a young Mickey Mantle would be of immense benefit to my most selfish goals."

"No doubt. But think of the incidental pleasure this might cause to millions of fans not involved in our transaction. What of the money it would make for other teams too? And what about the precedent! Next thing Horace Stoneham will be in here asking me about Willie Mays; my old friend Walter O'Malley will be back seeking a new elbow for that Jewish pitcher he had. The entire long-run decline of baseball, one of my favorite pastimes, might be undermined."

"Surely you understand that I deal in net human agony. Restoration of one man's youth usually increases the net; but in this case, and especially at the request of a third party—I'm afraid not. And you ask me to run such a risk for one soul. This is not the Middle Ages. In the Twentieth Century, the market is so glutted that an individual soul is virtually worthless. It's much easier to deal in millions. I might say the value of the individual soul has shrunk even faster than the value of the dollar. No, no, the deal is impossible."

And Mephistopheles smiled as kindly as he could. Burke seemed desperate.

"Suppose I throw in the souls of all the other players?" he finally blurted out. "We own them, in a way. And the whole office force?"

Mephistopheles, still smiling, just shook his head.

"What if?" Burke went on, lowering his voice, "I managed to get you the entire Columbia Broadcasting System?"

Mephistopheles laughed out loud.

"You can't be that naïve, Mr. Burke," he roared. And he disappeared.

And the Yankees are still on their own.

Blacks Edge Blues, Golds Top Orange In Rec Basketball

Two more very close ball games were played last night in Summer Recreational Basketball League action. In the opener of the evening the Blacks coached by Bill Mervine edged the Blues of Bob Koebly by a 57-55 count and in the nightcap it was the Dave Berdine coached Golds winning by a four-point margin from the Orange 50-46. The Golds last night were coached by Ron Isackson in the absence of a vacationing Gail Nelson.

In the first game the Blacks paced by the scoring of Dan

Krumm and the hot hand of Jack Glarner went off the court at the midway point leading 37-21. The second half was a different story however as the Blues really reared back and came within two points of victory. The second half comeback was paced by Randy Jones who was subbing for the injured Larry Spence. Jones, the 6'7" varsity center scored 14 points in about 12 minutes of action. Mark Krumm was the top scorer with 15 while his older brother Dan matched that total. Tom Marti notched 14.

The second game was a tighter ball game all the way as the first quarter was the only one in which either team enjoyed an advantage. The game matched last years two biggest varsity starters head to head and the battle between Eddie O'Neil and Randy Jones was an interesting one. O'Neil was the games leading scorer with 16, getting fine support from Craig Young and Nick Wendelboe with 14 and 10 respectively. Jones and Sam Wilson led the Orange with 13 apiece.

Two more games in this newly formed basketball league will be played next Monday night and the public is welcome to attend.

Steeler Vets Call for Amity Between Players and Owners

PITTSBURGH (AP)—National Football League players must patch up their relations with club owners and steer a less militant course in the future, Pittsburgh Steeler veterans declared Monday.

The now settled pension fight with owners left the Steelers with the impressions:

— They are relieved it's over.

— The players got a good pension deal.

— Players must restore gentlemanly relations with owners and drop hard-line tactics.

They seemed most concerned with the latter point.

"What was accomplished was pretty good," said linebacker Andy Russell. "But I have reservations about the method."

"I hope it didn't set a pattern. I don't want to see it revert to the level of a union-management type of relationship."

Russell added, "We'll have to be less militant in our approach. We'll have to be gentlemen and maintain a certain rapport with the owners."

In the past, he said, owners have been very reasonable with players.

"It's been a great relationship," he said. "Some people called it paternalism — that the owners treated us like a bunch of kids. This isn't true."

Defensive back Paul Marthas said pretty much the same thing.

"The way it was handled indicates to me there's a need for new policies and procedures on the part of the Players Association," Marthas said.

Without a change, he asserted, "It would seem to me a strike threat would come up every time a new contract comes up."

"I don't think we should go to these ends to get what we want. The owners as a group have been alienated by the tactics. We have to do it differently in the future."

Russell and flanker Roy Jefferson said the key to future harmony with owners is thorough discussions in a cordial atmosphere.

"We will have to sit down together and not go in there with a big club behind our back," said Russell.

Jefferson said, "The thing is we'll have to get together early in the off season and sit down and talk over these things and understand everything completely."

Without a change, added Jefferson, "I'm afraid our individual bargaining powers could be impaired in the future."

But Jefferson said the players' position in the pension bargaining may not have been as militant as is generally believed.

"John Campbell, our player representative, was in the best position to judge and he said the talks weren't as hard-line as some people were led to believe," said Jefferson. "He is our representative and I'll have to go along with him."

Rotary Club Hears About Constitutional Reform

By FRANKLIN HOFF

William F. Clinger Jr., delegate to the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, addressed the Warren Rotary Club Monday on the achievements of that undertaking and the implementing legislation which the Pennsylvania Senate and House of Representatives must still enact in the next few months to make the new constitution operative.

Clinger outlined the work the legislature has cut out for it, imposed by the five constitutional changes approved by the voters of the Commonwealth. "We can be very proud in Pennsylvania that we have enacted the five basic constitutional changes," Clinger observed, "because we are the first state since Michigan, in 1959-1960, to successfully modernize our constitution. Other efforts since then have all met with failure." He cited New York State's constitutional revision at a cost of $14 million being resoundingly defeated by the voters, Maryland's attempted revision also was defeated by over 100,000 votes.

Pennsylvania, he noted, had tried and failed five times since 1889 to hold a constitutional convention or make basic changes in its charter.

"This was, I assure you, not a rubber-stamp convention," he said stating there were many opposing ideas among the delegates, the result a reasonable compromise.

He considers the most far-reaching provisions are contained in the section on local government, which gives great flexibility and freedom for various units to determine their form, and to work in collaboration.

The fiscal reforms, which set statutory debt limits for the financing of the Commonwealth, are tied closely to tax revenues.

The reform of the Pennsylvania judiciary system, Clinger believes, is the most controversial phase of the constitutional modernization.

This for the first time brings

CLINGER IS SPEAKER

William F. Clinger Jr. addressed Warren Rotarians Monday on the outstanding features of the recent constitutional changes for Pennsylvania, and the work yet to be done by the legislature to implement it. the system into a unified whole, he says, and makes provision for replacement of judges under certain circumstances, and for direction by the State Supreme Court over hitherto independent common pleas courts, which in some cities, like Philadelphia, now take seven years or more before a personal injury case, for example, can get to trial. The reduction of the minor judiciary from as many as 7,000 justices of the peace on a fee basis, to 1,000 on a salary basis, and who are required to have special training, is a radical change.

Summing up, he declared the constitutional changes are neither extremely liberal nor conservative, but a compromise which all the people can live with.

Guests from other Rotary Clubs present were George V. Potts, Senior Active member of Bradford Rotary Club, and Stan Wilkins, formerly of Warren, from Huntsville, Alabama.

To counter the tropical weather, song leader John Kotof had the club sing "Jingle Bells" with Art Lydell as accompanist.

Attorney Clinger was introduced by Rotarian Harold S. Hampson.

Rotarian Larry Ekey reported that Rotary International exchange representative, Rachel Check, had arrived safely in England, and would soon address the Rotary Club in the town where she is now working in a florist shop and nursery.

Rocky's State Campaign Leader Claims Democratic Support

HARRISBURG (AP) — A co-chairman of the Pennsylvania for Rockefeller Committee said Monday more than 5,000 state Democrats and independents have pledged to work for the New York governor in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

"Of the 15,000 pledges of support we have tabulated state-wide, over one-third were from independents and Democrats," said H. J. Heinz II after a 30-minute meeting with Gov. Shafer, Heinz, Pittsburgh industrialist, serves as co-chairman with U. S. Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli of Williamsport.

"We think this indicates a broad base of electorate support for Nelson from the opposition party and independents," Heinz continued. "We intend to use these pledges to show the delegates what the character of support is for Gov. Rockefeller in their districts."

Heinz, who continually reminded reporters that he was an "amateur" in politics, estimated that 45 of the 64 delegates would back Rockefeller in Pennsylvania. He said eight or nine are firmly committed to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and one to California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"The rest are undecided," Heinz said, "leaning one way one day and the other the next. This group is the chief target of the arm twisters."

Asked to assess the impact of Nixon's visit to Philadelphia Tuesday, Heinz replied: "My assessment is that he is not going to burn into that pile (of firm Rockefeller delegates)."

Heinz said his citizens committee expected to spend $100,000 in the operation of three regional headquarters and 23 action committees at the county level. Most of the money would come from contributions, he added.

The meeting with Shafer was timed to coincide with the governor's cross-country campaign tour beginning Wednesday on Rockefeller's behalf.

"I'm sure our governor carefully evaluated the situation in Pennsylvania and what good he could do around the country," Heinz said. "He leaves things at home in good hands."

Rea Named To Education Council

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer Monday designated William H. Rea, president of the board of trustees at the University of Pittsburgh, as the new chairman of the State Board of Education's Council on Higher Education.

Rea was selected to succeed Frank Hawkins, who resigned last month in opposition to the administration's support of legislation providing state aid to nonpublic schools.

In saying he was pleased Rea accepted the post, Shafer commented: "All Pennsylvanians can feel certain that a man of his capabilities and dedication to service will represent their best interests on the council."

Rea has been a member of the board since December, 1966. No one has been nominated to replace Hawkins, a charter member, on the board.

Democrat Dinner

Warren County Commissioner Thomas J. Donnelly was a member of the committee and among 700 to attend the affair honoring U.S. Senator Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) who is seeking re-election. Donnelly said there were a number of Clark's colleagues from the Senate present along with a number of young persons and, what Donnelly described, as a "new element" among the Democrats.

Illinois Bell Deliberates Proposal

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. deliberated Monday a proposal by its striking electrical workers for binding arbitration of a wage dispute that threatens to move the Democratic National Convention from Chicago.

A spokesman for the striking International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Systems Council T-4, said a reply from Illinois Bell was expected by Monday "at the latest."

A company spokesman asked the union at midday to clarify a point in its proposal.

Clyde C. Boylls, assistant vice president in charge of labor relations, asked Robert A. Nickey, council chairman, whether the union had the legal right to commit the membership to binding arbitration by a third party in the absence of a referendum.

Boylls said the IBEW bargaining committee repeatedly has told the company any agreement must be approved by the members before it is binding.

Boylls made the request for clarification through the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The union made its binding arbitration proposal Saturday night after a daylong session between federal mediators and company and union representatives ended in stalemate.

Nickey said the employees, who have been on strike for 69 days, could return to work during arbitration. Such a step, however, would have to be settled as a separate back-to-work agreement, he added.

The walkout of 11,800 electrical workers started May 8. It has delayed installation of equipment needed for radio and television coverage of the convention scheduled to begin Aug. 26.

The union wants pay increases of $19.50 weekly immediately and $10 for the final 18 months of the existing contract. It is negotiating under a wage reopener clause in a three-year general contract that terminates in 1969.

Illinois Bell has offered $12 a week over the life of the 18-month contract, or $26 a week for a new three-year package.

Missing Corry Girl Is Home Again

Karen Sue Cooney, the 15-year-old Corry girl who disappeared from her home July 9 was discharged from Corry Memorial Hospital Sunday. Karen had been in the hospital since she was found Wednesday after a 25-hour manhunt. She had been under observation. State police of the Corry substation are still investigating.

Philadelphia Policeman Killed with Own Revolver

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Philadelphia policeman was shot and killed Monday—apparently with his own service revolver—after tussling with a robbery suspect he had over-taken in a foot chase.

Patrolman Ross F. Brackett, 25, married and the father of a young daughter, died in Misericordia Hospital shortly after the 8:30 a.m. shooting in West Philadelphia.

Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo immediately launched, and led, a widespread manhunt for a Negro suspect.

Brackett is white.

"All of the 300 men we have out here, and all of the 2,500 policemen on duty throughout the city have been given a picture of a suspect," said Police Inspector Michael Mangione. "We'll get him."

Rizzo said he was "very much distressed and saddened by the death of this young man."

Police constructed this series of events:

Brackett and his partner, Milton Hall, were cruising in an emergency wagon when they were alerted that a cashbox had been stolen from a Philadelphia Transportation Co. trolley.

The two policemen, given a description of the suspect at the robbery scene, later spotted a man answering the description. Brackett got out of the police vehicle to chase the suspect while Hall drove around the block to head him off.

"When Hall reached 52nd St. and Walton Ave., he found Brackett on the sidewalk, dying from a gunshot wound of the head.

A witness, Jesse Wallace, 9, told police he saw Brackett chasing a suspect.

"The policeman tried to put the cuffs on the boy," young Wallace said, "but the boy pulled his hands back and the cuffs dropped on the ground. The policeman grabbed the boy by the neck and tried to put the cuffs on him again.

"The boy got the gun (Brackett's) and ran around the corner. The policeman chased him and then I heard five shots."

Brackett's revolver was found later in the yard of a West Philadelphia home.

Humphrey Would Halt Narcotics Traffic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey called Monday for a massive national effort to halt the traffic in narcotics.

Describing the drug addict as "the most pitiful person in the world—and one of the most dangerous," Humphrey urged large scale programs for the rehabilitation of addicts, and more research on the effects of marijuana and other drugs.

Humphrey, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, also backed draft law reform, 18-year-old voting, and strict gun-control laws.

He took the positions in replying to questions from the "Grasshopper Gazette," student newspaper of the Georgetown Day School.

Humphrey advocated adoption of FAIR, "The Fair and Impartial Random Draft System" proposed last year by the President's Advisory Commission on Selective Service.
